

The Do Not Call list should be made even more strict. I am still getting phone calls from charities, benevolent associations and political candidates. Not only do they interrupt a busy home schedule, it takes two minutes to get them to hang up the phone because they will not take NO for an answer. A few solicitors take the familiar approach to their soliciatation pitches which puts me in an uneasy frame of mind. ie: "Hello.....how are you.....this is XXXX XXXX..... By now, I must ask them to get to the point! So PLEASE, TIGHTEN the Telephone Consumer Protection Act.
